

city college news

Vision 2003 on course and gaining momentum

According to Michael Cooke, VP Academic Excellence and Innovation for George Brown College, "Now's the time for the rubber to hit the road for Vision 2003." He says that with the outstanding success of the October 3 kick-off, and the recent bus tour event, "everyone has had lots of opportunities to hear about Vision 2003 and to see how other people are innovating and interacting."

The next major event for Vision 2003 is set for March 1, 2002. This college-wide celebration, entitled "Ramping Up For Success," will focus on staff development and deepening the collective understanding of how Vision 2003 will be achieved. The program will include an impressive list of high-profile speakers and an opportunity for everyone to celebrate what has been accomplished to date.

In the meantime, says Cooke, "The seeds have been planted. We can't lose the momentum. Everyone should now be focussing their efforts on understanding and applying what we've learned on a more practical, departmental level."

According to the evaluation forms submitted by participants in the bus tour, staff have lots of ideas of how to do this. Here are just a few ideas that they identified from the bus tour experience:

- have all staff wear name tags;
- make it easier for students to meet with staff;
- look for strategies to improve productivity in program offices;
- collaborate more with Student Affairs and the Student Association to create learning communities;
- invite departments of the college to share best practices with each other;
- collaborate with the International Centre to improve service to international students;

- develop mentoring programs for students;
- develop ties with colleagues in the same field in other departments;
- work on developing international partnerships.

Cooke says the key to keeping Vision 2003 on course is being proactive and using these events as a springboard to implement visible changes that count. "Lots of staff are enthusiastic about what they want to do to move our vision forward. The challenge is to translate that enthusiasm into real change in terms of academic excellence and student service."

Aerobathon nets over $5,200

There was more than trick or treating going at the Casa Loma gymnasium on Hallowe'en. Over 130 people, including students, Varsity athletes and staff members, took part in a four-hour fund-raising Aerobathon.

This marks the 13th year for the Aerobathon. This year, participants raised more than $5,200 in pledges for the College's Varsity Athletics and the Fitness and Lifestyle

Management program.

The gym was decorated in a Hallowe'en theme, and prizes were awarded for top pledges and costume design.

The pledge awards went to: Sarah Jane Jambaro (1st with $385); Adam Trabulsi (2nd with $240); and Heather Thompson (3rd with $190).

The award for the best costume went to Shannon Taylor who appeared as a red M&M.

The Hallowe'en spirit was alive and well at the Faculty of Business and Creative Arts, as members of the support staff showed up for the day in costumes fitting the occasion. Shown in photo are (l to r): Sue Ascenzi, Mayee Ramrattan, Katrina Harpell and Liz Henriques.

ASL instructor answered the call to teaching

If you ask Judy Ercolino what achievements she is most proud of, the Professor in the Pre-Interpreter Program at George Brown College's Faculty of Community Services and Health Sciences doesn't even have to think about it. It was being selected as the college-wide recipient of the Crystal Apple Award celebrating Teaching Excellence. "I don't think I'll ever forget that moment."

Ercolino is in her third year at George Brown and teaches American Sign Language (ASL) and Deaf Culture and Community courses. Born Deaf, she has spent a lifetime committed to the deaf community.

Raised in London, Ontario, Ercolino attended the Robarts School for the Deaf. She says that throughout her life, "My parents were always supportive of me and my goals."

She studied Psychology at Gallaudet University in Washington, DC, where she met two important people who would influence the rest of her life: college president Dr. Irving King Jordan, and her future husband, Steve. "Dr. Jordan's motto was 'Deaf people can do anything except hear,' and he truly made me believe that. As for Steve, he's the most important thing in my life."

After completing post-graduate work at Western Maryland College, Ercolino worked as a Vocational Rehabilitation Services Counsellor for the Canadian Hearing Society.

It was then that she decided to participate in training to become an ASL instructor.

"As soon as I began, I realized this was my language and way to express myself, and I wanted to share it." In 1999, she joined George Brown College as a full-time teacher. "I make sure my students get the best skills in ASL and an increased knowledge of Deaf Culture and Community – 'Our Deaf World'. Right now, it's the best job in the whole world for me."

"I'm so inspired by the students from the very first day right through until the end of the year. It's amazing to watch their skills develop, and how everyone develops their own style. It's like watching flowers. As they grow, they become more colorful and brilliant as the season goes on."

"Of course my husband and family have been instrumental in getting me into full-time teaching," Ercolino says. "However, thanks go first and foremost to my students and the faculty who support me, including coordinator Phyllis Beaton-Vazquez, and co-workers, Wayne Nicholson and Campbell McDermid."

Con Ed meets continued growth with flexibility

For years Continuing Education (Con Ed) has been a mainstay of the College's academic offerings.

According to Kathleen Abbott, Acting Director of Continuing Education, the department has been growing steadily in recent years and now boasts more than 35,000 registrants, a support staff of 25, almost 600 faculty, and a multitude of certificates and general interest courses.

Abbott anticipates that the growth of the past few years will continue for some time yet. "We're projecting a gain of up to 12% over the next year – and so far, we're right on track."

In contrast to other institutions' efforts at continuing education, she says, George Brown has met success because "we have the ability to listen to people and respond and a firm belief in tailoring our courses to meet the demands of the community. When people call in with requests, we track them all. If enough people want a particular course, we'll make sure we have it next time around."

She adds that the downtown campus location is also a key selling point for the program, "making it much easier for business people who work in the area to drop in for a course after work."

Flexibility is absolutely essential when working with such a broad range of students and skill requirements. To that end, the department's offerings undergo continuous revision, introducing new courses that fit the needs of businesses and healthcare institutions – as well as the personal tastes of individual students.

Con Ed has added many new courses this year, ranging from Practical Management Strategies and Emergency Nursing to Film Production and French Farmhouse cooking.

The big news of the day, however, is the launch of a new Web site that will offer on-line registration capabilities before the January session begins. Although Con Ed has always gotten a lot of mileage from distributing its 200-plus page Course Guide every year, the Web promises to help streamline registration procedures, reach a wider audience and allow greater flexibility.

Colin Simpson, Dean of the Centre for Continuous Learning, with Kathleen Abbott, Acting Director of Continuing Education

Abbott says the Web site is only one of many projects they will be focusing on in the coming months. Distance learning – under the auspices of LIAD (Learning Innovations and Academic Development), chaired by Cal Shaw – is also a priority. "We consider that to be an important growth area."

As Con Ed gears up for the start of the January session, Abbott reminds full-time staff that they are entitled to take courses for $22 each plus text and material fees. "It's a great learning opportunity. They should really take advantage of it."

Joint project with Suzhou a successful venture for all

On November 6th, officials from the Suzhou Vocational College (SVC) celebrated the successful completion of a four-year education and training project. The project, funded by Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) through the Association of Canadian Community Colleges (ACCC), is a joint venture between SVC and George Brown College.

The celebration was held at Siegfried's and hosted by GBC President Frank Sorochinsky. Speakers included Chen Kunru, Consul of the People's Republic of China in Toronto; Margaux Bèland, Senior Project Officer/Coordinator for ACCC; and Nathalie O'Neil, Senior Program Officer for CIDA. Representing SVC were President Gen Min Mao; as well as Dean Xian Sheng Zhang and Vice Dean Han Li.

In his address Sorochinsky talked about the close partnership that has developed between the two colleges and the people who had been instrumental in the project. "It is important that we prepare students so they can contribute to the social well being of our cities...and beyond. Our college has gained invaluable insight. We are richer and more responsive as a college because of it."

"We have so much more to learn from each other," he added, "and so much more to accomplish together."

Over the past four years, George Brown staff have made eight visits, offering Suzhou support in the areas of college administration, curriculum development, industry advisory committees, fundraising, student practicums, accounting, English language studies, western cuisine, and mechanical engineering.

SVC has also sent administrative and teaching staff to George Brown to explore management and instruction models, as well as to upgrade skills and curriculum development in English, hospitality, accounting, applied computer studies, and other fields.

According to Nancy Sherman, Director of International Education at GBC, the project has provided many benefits. "It allowed SVC to establish an educational applied model involving partnership with industry, and helped SVC to increase the practical, hands-on experience in its curriculum for students." These efforts have resulted in raising the employment rate for SVC graduates to 90 per cent.

The end of the project marks the beginning of a new phase in the relationship between GBC and SVC with the signing of an ongoing cooperation agreement. The two colleges will develop three articulation agreements in accounting, hotel management and applied computer studies. These agreements will result in SVC students coming to GBC to complete their programs and GBC students going to Suzhou for work practicums.

George Brown College president Frank Sorochinsky (left) with SVC President Gen Min Mao and Dean Xian Sheng Zhang.

GBC Graphic Design grad wins Best of Show

Paul Fleming, a graduate of GBC's Graphic Design program, was recently awarded Best of Show at the Baddeck International New Media Festival in Baddeck, Nova Scotia, October 22 to 24. Fleming's award-winning entry at the annual competition was his personal project, www.paulewardfleming.com.

His web page design also took the Best Creative and the Best Personal, Independent Web Project awards.

Fleming graduated from the Graphic Design program in 1994. Since then, he has been working with Creative House in Toronto, but in the new year will be running his own firm with another GBC

Grad, Curtis Achilles, called Red Communications.

In the past seven years Fleming has won six Applied Arts Magazine Awards, two Electronic Link Digital Awards, and many online awards. This year, he was also a finalist in the Designer of the Year category for the Canadian New Media Awards.

Premier's Awards nominees

George Brown College has just announced this year's nominees for the Premier's Awards being presented in February 2002. This prestigious awards presentation is an annual provincial program that recognizes the outstanding career success and community contributions made by Ontario's college graduates. Launched in 1992, the Awards are committed to raising public awareness of the potential of, and excellence in, college education.

Ontario colleges are eligible to nominate individuals in the categories of Creative Arts, Health Sciences, Applied Arts, Business, and Technology, as well as a new category for 2002, Recent Graduate.

Last year, Paul Rowan, Co-owner, Vice President and Creative Director of Umbra Ltd. was the recipient of the Applied Arts: Creative Arts Category Award. Rowan is a graduate of George Brown's Graphic Design Program.

This year's nominees are: Anthony E. Brissett, MD (Health Sciences); Yilmaz Alimoglu (Technology); Susan Physick (Applied Arts: Community Services); Colleen Walker (Applied Arts: Creative Arts and Design); and Troy Ross (Recent Graduate).

Look for profiles of the nominees in our next issue.

news briefs

Jewellery repair service open for business

Until March 15th, 2002, staff and students are welcome to visit the Casa Loma Campus Jewellery Repair Service. Available services include ring sizing, claw retipping, chain soldering, stone setting, safety chains, earring posts, brooch pins and custom design work.

The Service is open Tuesdays to Thursdays between 10 am to 12 pm, and is located in Room C520 on the 5th Floor of Building C, 160 Kendal Avenue. For more information, call (416) 415-4463 and ask for Beata.

GBC instructor nominated for Governor General's Literary Award

The Canada Council for the Arts has nominated Continuing Education instructor Phil Hall for a Governor General's Literary Award. Hall, who teaches a Poetry Workshop at George Brown College, is nominated in the poetry category for his work Trouble Sleeping, an exploration of childhood in rural Ontario. The winners in each category will be available starting on Wednesday, November 14 on the Canada Council's website at www.canadacouncil.ca.

Theatre Arts produces Shakespeare comedy

The Theatre Arts Department has begun its first production of the year, Shakespeare's Love's Labour's Lost, directed by Joseph Ziegler. The show runs until November 17 (Tuesday to Saturday at 8:00 pm, and Saturday at 2:00 p.m.) at the George Brown Theatre, 530 King Street East. Tickets are $12 for general admission, and pay what you can for Saturday matinees. For more information on the upcoming season, or to purchase tickets, call (416) 415-2167.

City College News editor takes Oxford post-doc

Marianne Fedunkiw, who has been editor of City College News since January, has left GBC to take a post-doctoral fellowship at Oxford University. This week, Fedunkiw begins two years as a Hannah Fellow at Oxford's Wellcome Unit for the History of Medicine. Her research focuses on the representation of malaria within film. Congratulations, Marianne!

city college news

is a publication of the Communications and Marketing Department, George Brown College, at 200 King St. East, Toronto, M5T 2T9 Room 542E
Story ideas? Contact Rosalie Starkey at 415-4842 or rstarkey@gbrown.on.ca
Editor: Ed Tracy Writer: Denise Deveau
Contents copyright George Brown College, 2001.

upcoming events

Free Career Planning Workshop – Continuing Education

Monday, December 3 (6:30 to 9:30pm)

St. James Campus, 200 King St. E., Room 128

Advance registration required. Call (416) 415-2000, ext. 3444 and press 1 to register.

Web Page Development Workshop – Learning Innovations & Academic Development

Wednesday, November 21; Friday, Dec. 14 (9:00am to 12:00pm)

Casa Loma Campus, 160 Kendal Ave., Studio C 4th Floor

Call Linda Purser at (416) 415-2000, ext. 4661 to register. For more information, contact Shirley Lesch, ext. 2867.

Lions Foundation Dog Guides Hearing Ear Dogs of Canada "Meet the Trainer"

Wednesday, November 21 (2:00 to 4:00pm)

Casa Loma Campus, 160 Kendal Avenue, Room C238

Contact: Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Services

TTY (416) 864-0535 or voice (416) 415-4654

2001 Holiday Gala Dinner & Dance

Friday, November 23 (7:00 to 9:00pm)

Fantasy Farm, 50 Pottery Road

The deadline to purchase tickets is November 16.

For more information, please contact Anne Sardo at (416) 415-4595 or e-mail asardo@gbrown.on.ca.

Free True Colors® Workshop – Continuing Education

Monday, November 26; December 10 (6:30 to 9:30pm)

St. James Campus, 200 King St. E., Room 128

Advance registration required. Call (416) 415-2000, ext. 3444 and press 3 to register.

city college news

Vision 2003 on course and gaining momentum

According to Michael Cooke, VP Academic Excellence and Innovation for George Brown College, "Now's the time for the rubber to hit the road for Vision 2003." He says that with the outstanding success of the October 3 kick-off, and the recent bus tour event, "everyone has had lots of opportunities to hear about Vision 2003 and to see how other people are innovating and interacting."

The next major event for Vision 2003 is set for March 1, 2002. This college-wide celebration, entitled "Ramping Up For Success," will focus on staff development and deepening the collective understanding of how Vision 2003 will be achieved. The program will include an impressive list of high-profile speakers and an opportunity for everyone to celebrate what has been accomplished to date.

In the meantime, says Cooke, "The seeds have been planted. We can't lose the momentum. Everyone should now be focussing their efforts on understanding and applying what we've learned on a more practical, departmental level."

According to the evaluation forms submitted by participants in the bus tour, staff have lots of ideas of how to do this. Here are just a few ideas that they identified from the bus tour experience:

- have all staff wear name tags;
- make it easier for students to meet with staff;
- look for strategies to improve productivity in program offices;
- collaborate more with Student Affairs and the Student Association to create learning communities;
- invite departments of the college to share best practices with each other;
- collaborate with the International Centre to improve service to international students;

- develop mentoring programs for students;
- develop ties with colleagues in the same field in other departments;
- work on developing international partnerships.

Cooke says the key to keeping Vision 2003 on course is being proactive and using these events as a springboard to implement visible changes that count. "Lots of staff are enthusiastic about what they want to do to move our vision forward. The challenge is to translate that enthusiasm into real change in terms of academic excellence and student service."

Aerobathon nets over $5,200

There was more than trick or treating going at the Casa Loma gymnasium on Hallowe'en. Over 130 people, including students, Varsity athletes and staff members, took part in a four-hour fund-raising Aerobathon.

This marks the 13th year for the Aerobathon. This year, participants raised more than $5,200 in pledges for the College's Varsity Athletics and the Fitness and Lifestyle

Management program.

The gym was decorated in a Hallowe'en theme, and prizes were awarded for top pledges and costume design.

The pledge awards went to: Sarah Jane Jambaro (1st with $385); Adam Trabulsi (2nd with $240); and Heather Thompson (3rd with $190).

The award for the best costume went to Shannon Taylor who appeared as a red M&M.

The Hallowe'en spirit was alive and well at the Faculty of Business and Creative Arts, as members of the support staff showed up for the day in costumes fitting the occasion. Shown in photo are (l to r): Sue Ascenzi, Mayee Ramrattan, Katrina Harpell and Liz Henriques.

ASL instructor answered the call to teaching

If you ask Judy Ercolino what achievements she is most proud of, the Professor in the Pre-Interpreter Program at George Brown College's Faculty of Community Services and Health Sciences doesn't even have to think about it. It was being selected as the college-wide recipient of the Crystal Apple Award celebrating Teaching Excellence. "I don't think I'll ever forget that moment."

Ercolino is in her third year at George Brown and teaches American Sign Language (ASL) and Deaf Culture and Community courses. Born Deaf, she has spent a lifetime committed to the deaf community.

Raised in London, Ontario, Ercolino attended the Robarts School for the Deaf. She says that throughout her life, "My parents were always supportive of me and my goals."

She studied Psychology at Gallaudet University in Washington, DC, where she met two important people who would influence the rest of her life: college president Dr. Irving King Jordan, and her future husband, Steve. "Dr. Jordan's motto was 'Deaf people can do anything except hear,' and he truly made me believe that. As for Steve, he's the most important thing in my life."

After completing post-graduate work at Western Maryland College, Ercolino worked as a Vocational Rehabilitation Services Counsellor for the Canadian Hearing Society.

It was then that she decided to participate in training to become an ASL instructor.

"As soon as I began, I realized this was my language and way to express myself, and I wanted to share it." In 1999, she joined George Brown College as a full-time teacher. "I make sure my students get the best skills in ASL and an increased knowledge of Deaf Culture and Community – 'Our Deaf

World'. Right now, it's the best job in the whole world for me."

"I'm so inspired by the students from the very first day right through until the end of the year. It's amazing to watch their skills develop, and how everyone develops their own style. It's like watching flowers. As they grow, they become more colorful and brilliant as the season goes on."

"Of course my husband and family have been instrumental in getting me into full-time teaching," Ercolino says. "However, thanks go first and foremost to my students and the faculty who support me, including coordinator Phyllis Beaton-Vazquez, and co-workers, Wayne Nicholson and Campbell McDermid."

Con Ed meets continued growth with flexibility

For years Continuing Education (Con Ed) has been a mainstay of the College's academic offerings.

According to Kathleen Abbott, Acting Director of Continuing Education, the department has been growing steadily in recent years and now boasts more than 35,000 registrants, a support staff of 25, almost 600 faculty, and a multitude of certificates and general interest courses.

Abbott anticipates that the growth of the past few years will continue for some time yet. "We're projecting a gain of up to 12% over the next year – and so far, we're right on track."

In contrast to other institutions' efforts at continuing education, she says, George Brown has met success because "we have the ability to listen to people and respond and a firm belief in

tailoring our courses to meet the demands of the community. When people call in with requests, we track them all. If enough people want a particular course, we'll make sure we have it next time around."

She adds that the downtown campus location is also a key selling point for the program, "making it much easier for business people who work in the area to drop in for a course after work."

Flexibility is absolutely essential when working with such a broad range of students and skill requirements. To that end, the department's offerings undergo continuous revision, introducing new courses that fit the needs of businesses and healthcare institutions – as well as the personal tastes of individual students.

Con Ed has added many

new courses this year, ranging from Practical Management Strategies and Emergency Nursing to Film Production and French Farmhouse cooking.

The big news of the day, however, is the launch of a new Web site that will offer on-line registration capabilities before the January session begins. Although Con Ed has always gotten a lot of mileage from distributing its 200-plus page Course Guide every year, the Web promises to help streamline registration procedures, reach a wider audience and allow greater flexibility.

Colin Simpson, Dean of the Centre for Continuous Learning, with Kathleen Abbott, Acting Director of Continuing Education

Abbott says the Web site is only one of many projects they will be focusing on in the coming months. Distance learning – under the auspices of LIAD (Learning Innovations and Academic Development), chaired by Cal Shaw – is also a priority. "We consider that to be an important growth area."

As Con Ed gears up for the start of the January session, Abbott reminds full-time staff that they are entitled to take courses for $22 each plus text and material fees. "It's a great learning opportunity. They should really take advantage of it."

Joint project with Suzhou a successful venture for all

On November 6th, officials from the Suzhou Vocational College (SVC) celebrated the successful completion of a four-year education and training project. The project, funded by Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) through the

Association of Canadian Community Colleges (ACCC), is a joint venture between SVC and George Brown College.

The celebration was held at Siegfried's and hosted by GBC President Frank Sorochinsky. Speakers included Chen Kunru, Consul of the People's Republic of China in Toronto; Margaux Bêland, Senior Project Officer/Coordinator for ACCC; and Nathalie O'Neil, Senior Program Officer for CIDA. Representing SVC were President Gen Min Mao; as well as Dean Xian Sheng Zhang and Vice Dean Han Li.

In his address Sorochinsky talked about the close partnership that has developed between the two colleges and the people who had been instrumental in the project. "It is important that we prepare students so they can contribute to the social well being of our cities...and beyond. Our college has gained invaluable insight. We are richer and more responsive as a college because of it."

"We have so much more to learn from each other," he added, "and so much more to accomplish together."

Over the past four years, George Brown staff have made eight visits, offering Suzhou support in the areas of college administration, curriculum development, industry advisory committees, fundraising, student practicums, accounting, English language studies, western cuisine, and mechanical engineering.

SVC has also sent administrative and teaching staff to George Brown to explore management and instruction models, as well as to upgrade skills and curriculum development in English, hospitality, accounting, applied computer studies, and other fields.

According to Nancy Sherman, Director of International Education at GBC, the project has provided many benefits. "It allowed SVC to establish an educational applied model involving partnership with industry, and helped SVC to increase the practical, hands-on experience in its curriculum for students." These efforts have resulted in raising the employment rate for SVC graduates to 90 per cent.

The end of the project marks the beginning of a new phase in the relationship between GBC and SVC with the signing of an ongoing cooperation agreement. The two colleges will develop three articulation agreements in accounting, hotel management and applied computer studies. These agreements will result in SVC students coming to GBC to complete their programs and GBC students going to Suzhou for work practicums.

George Brown College president Frank Sorochinsky (left) with SVC President Gen Min Mao and Dean Xian Sheng Zhang.

GBC Graphic Design grad wins Best of Show

Paul Fleming, a graduate of GBC's Graphic Design program, was recently awarded Best of Show at the Baddeck International New Media Festival in Baddeck, Nova Scotia, October 22 to 24. Fleming's award-winning entry at the annual competition was his personal project, www.paulewardfleming.com.

His web page design also took the Best Creative and the Best Personal, Independent Web Project awards.

Fleming graduated from the Graphic Design program in 1994. Since then, he has been working with Creative House in Toronto, but in the new year will be running his own firm with another GBC

Grad, Curtis Achilles, called Red Communications.

In the past seven years Fleming has won six Applied Arts Magazine Awards, two Electronic Link Digital Awards, and many online awards. This year, he was also a finalist in the Designer of the Year category for the Canadian New Media Awards.

Premier's Awards nominees

George Brown College has just announced this year's nominees for the Premier's Awards being presented in February 2002. This prestigious awards presentation is an annual provincial program that recognizes the outstanding career success and community contributions made by Ontario's college graduates. Launched in 1992, the Awards are committed to raising public awareness of the potential of, and excellence in, college education.

Ontario colleges are eligible to nominate individuals in the categories of Creative Arts, Health Sciences, Applied Arts, Business, and Technology, as well as a new category for 2002, Recent Graduate.

Last year, Paul Rowan, Co-owner, Vice President and Creative Director of Umbra Ltd. was the recipient of the Applied Arts: Creative Arts Category Award. Rowan is a graduate of George Brown's Graphic Design Program.

This year's nominees are: Anthony E. Brissett, MD (Health Sciences); Yilmaz Alimoglu (Technology); Susan Physick (Applied Arts: Community Services); Colleen Walker (Applied Arts: Creative Arts and Design); and Troy Ross (Recent Graduate).

Look for profiles of the nominees in our next issue.

news briefs

Jewellery repair service open for business

Until March 15th, 2002, staff and students are welcome to visit the Casa Loma Campus Jewellery Repair Service. Available services include ring sizing, claw retipping, chain soldering, stone setting, safety chains, earring posts, brooch pins and custom design work.

The Service is open Tuesdays to Thursdays between 10 am to 12 pm, and is located in Room C520 on the 5th Floor of Building C, 160 Kendal Avenue. For more information, call (416) 415-4463 and ask for Beata.

GBC instructor nominated for Governor General's Literary Award

The Canada Council for the Arts has nominated Continuing Education instructor Phil Hall for a Governor General's Literary Award. Hall, who teaches a Poetry Workshop at George Brown College, is nominated in the poetry category for his work Trouble Sleeping, an exploration of childhood in rural Ontario. The winners in each category will be available starting on Wednesday, November 14 on the Canada Council's website at www.canadacouncil.ca.

Theatre Arts produces Shakespeare comedy

The Theatre Arts Department has begun its first production of the year, Shakespeare's Love's Labour's Lost, directed by Joseph Ziegler. The show runs until November 17 (Tuesday to Saturday at 8:00 pm, and Saturday at 2:00 p.m.) at the George Brown Theatre, 530 King Street East. Tickets are $12 for general admission, and pay what you can for Saturday matinees. For more information on the upcoming season, or to purchase tickets, call (416) 415-2167.

City College News editor takes Oxford post-doc

Marianne Fedunkiw, who has been editor of City College News since January, has left GBC to take a post-doctoral fellowship at Oxford University. This week, Fedunkiw begins two years as a Hannah Fellow at Oxford's Wellcome Unit for the History of Medicine. Her research focuses on the representation of malaria within film. Congratulations, Marianne!

city college news

is a publication of the Communications and Marketing Department, George Brown College, at 200 King St. East, Toronto, M5T 2T9 Room 542E
Story ideas? Contact Rosalie Starkey at 415-4842 or rstarkey@gbrownc.on.ca
Editor: Ed Tracy Writer: Denise Deveau
Contents copyright George Brown College, 2001.

upcoming events

Free Career Planning Workshop – Continuing Education

Monday, December 3 (6:30 to 9:30pm)

St. James Campus, 200 King St. E., Room 128

Advance registration required. Call (416) 415-2000, ext. 3444 and press 1 to register.

Web Page Development Workshop – Learning Innovations & Academic Development

Wednesday, November 21; Friday, Dec. 14 (9:00am to 12:00pm)

Casa Loma Campus, 160 Kendal Ave., Studio C 4th Floor

Call Linda Purser at (416) 415-2000, ext. 4661 to register. For more information, contact Shirley Lesch, ext. 2867.

Lions Foundation Dog Guides Hearing Ear Dogs of Canada "Meet the Trainer"

Wednesday, November 21 (2:00 to 4:00pm)

Casa Loma Campus, 160 Kendal Avenue, Room C238

Contact: Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Services

TTY (416) 864-0535 or voice (416) 415-4654

2001 Holiday Gala Dinner & Dance

Friday, November 23 (7:00 to 9:00pm)

Fantasy Farm, 50 Pottery Road

The deadline to purchase tickets is November 16.

For more information, please contact Anne Sardo at (416) 415-4595 or e-mail asardo@gbrownc.on.ca.

Free True Colors® Workshop – Continuing Education

Monday, November 26; December 10 (6:30 to 9:30pm)

St. James Campus, 200 King St. E., Room 128

Advance registration required. Call (416) 415-2000, ext. 3444 and press 3 to register.